The Origin Of The Innland Cookies

Years 1955 ago, Hong Nong invited an old friend who brought along an English couple who live in Penang, Malaysia for dinner. The English couple likes Hong Nong's daughter so much and always come to Hong Nong's house to meet her, teaching her English and how to make England cookies. They treated her like their own daughter. They even successfully blended the east meet west cultures by making Nanyang Western Durian Cookies using fresh durians.

In one hot summer day, the English couple decided to go back to England. The couple urges Hong Nong to let their daughter to go back to England with them and continue her studies in England. Hong Nong had considered this opportunities of giving the best to all their kids and therefore agreed to the couple's request.

Later years, Hong Nong's family members will make Durian Cookies whenever they miss their lovely daughter. Until today, Hong Nong's family will let these unique delicacies, strong cultural background and yet meaningful product to be enjoyed by everyone who share the passion.
